CANTERBURY, England (CP) - Protestant militants disrupted a Roman Catholic service today at Canterbury Cathedral, shrine of the Church of

Cathedral officials said 12,000 Catholics turned out for a pontifical mass in the grounds of the Anglican church at the invitation of the dean. who called it "a friendly ecumenical gesture."

The mass was one of the three ecumenical services held at Canterbury to mark the murder of Archbishop Thomas Becket in 1170.

Paisley waved a banner carrying the words, "Jesus saves, Rome enslaves," and shouted "don't let your children go to hell," as parties of schoolchildren filed past in the care of nuns.

Despite the heat, women in stiff straw hats and men in tight collars and suits sang along in full voice with Paisley.

'Clandestine' Visit Rapped By N. Ireland

BELFAST (AP) Minister James Chichester-Clark of Northern Ireland sharply denounced today the clandestine visit to his tense province Monday by the Irish Republic's external affairs

"I am astounded," said Chichester-Clark, "that the foreign minister of any state should show such a lack of courtesy as to visit Northern Ireland without reference to me or to the Northern Ireland government—the more so in the present very serious situation.

External Affairs Minister Patrick Hillery, who also is Ireland's deputy premier, said made his unannounced visit to the riot-torn Falls Road area of Belfast to "relax tension" among the Roman Catholics there.

A source close to the North-ern Ireland government said the Irish Republic government obviously trying to get United Nations intervention making this into an

"This is a trespass by a foreigner tory and is against all politiconvenion," the source added.

But the British foreign office said Hillery as an Irishman "is perfectly free to travel to any part of Ireland."

Hillery's 77.25 expected to enrage Northern Ireland's dominant Protestants. They were expected to regard it as a symbolic assertion of the republic's claim to the six northern counties, which were split off from the 26 Catholic-dominated counties to the south 50 years ago. Rev. Ian Paisley, the militant Protestant evangelist, called the visit "an unwarranted interference in the internal affairs" of Northern Ireland, which is part of the United Kingdom.

Hillery said he would approach the British government on behalf of the Falls Road Catholics, who com-plained that British soldiers looted and wrecked their homes while they searched for arms after fighting last weekend.

LYNCH PASSIVE

Political observers felt the main reason for the trip was to counter criticism in the republic that Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch was playing too passive a role in the crisis between Northern Ireland's Catholics and Protestants. Lynch's govern-ment has pledged to reunify Ireland only through peaceful means.

Hillery said in a television interview after he returned to Dublin that the Northern Ireland government could not

He told a news conference he met with nine locked - out construction unions and the Construction Labor Relations Association this morning. He asked the CLRA to lift its lockout and advised the unions to instruct their members to report for work.

After the 10 days, he would allow them a further 60 days to reach a settlement on their own, Peterson said.

BOTH SIDES

"I made it very clear to both sides that we would not tolerate any strike or lockout action during the 60-day period," Peterson said. "If, during or after this period, there is a strike or lockout we will use legislation to bring about a settlement."

He estimated that direct payroll loss to workers in the dispute has reached about $50,000,000 in the three-month

TORONTO THREAT EMPTIES DC-8 JET

TORONTO (CP) — A bomb scare at Toronto International Airport Monday night forced 87 passengers to evacuate an Air Canada DC-8 jet through the emergency exits.

Reservation officials received a telephone call at 8:40 p.m. just as the plane touched down from Montreal, warning that a bomb would go off 10 minutes after the landing.

Most passengers used the main emergency escape chute, but a number used escape hatches to the wing and were slightly injured jumping to the ground. No bomb was found.

Two Editions Of Citizen

Published Times News Services

OTTAWA - The Citizen published two editions today despite a picket line outside the building.

Monday only one edition was published. (See earlier story on Page 12.)

The picket line is manned by the International Typographical Union, pressm mailers, engravers and mempaper Guild who walked off the job Monday in support of the printers.

Only about half the circulation of 85,000 was distributed Monday because pickets turned away trucks. Negotiations were to re sume this afternoon between the paper and the ITU.

The disclosure was made at a news conference Monday a news conterence monday night by Israeli Chief of Staff Hayim Bar-Lev, who indi-cated that Soviet crews may have fired SAM-3 missiles at Israeli planes.

He said he believes Soviet personnel may have died during Israeli bombing raids on Egyptian SAM-2 batteries ranged behind the Suez canal

Lt.-Gen. Bar-Lev stressed Israel's determination to maintain its stand along the Suez canal front.

He said Israeli jets have not attacked any SAM-3 bat-teries which are farther away from the canal front on the far side of a missile network set up midway betweeen the canal and Cairo. But he said Israeli pilots reported at least two rockets, which appeared to be of the more sophisticated SAM-3 type, were fired at them. SEE CLASH AHEAD

Observers in Tel Aviv noted Israel's declared determination to maintain its air su periority along the canal, coupled with the new Soviet involvement in the SAM-2 and SAM-3 batteries, could lead to a collision between Israel and Soviet forces, especially if Israeli planes were hit by SAM-3 batteries manned entirely by Soviet personnel

The observers said it was believed that Soviet pilot might be ordered to defend Sam-3 sites. Israel already has charged

Tthat Soviet pilots are fly-ing operational missions over

Egypt.
The Tel Aviv report on sophisticated SAM-3 missiles being fired at Israeli planes was seen in Washington as another, dangerous spiral in the Middle East situation:

Some U.S. officials regard the introduction of Soviet pilots and missiles into Egypt as a direct challenge to the United States and part of Russia's global policy of expanding its influence wherever possible.

London-Victoria Air Race Eyed for B.C. Centenary

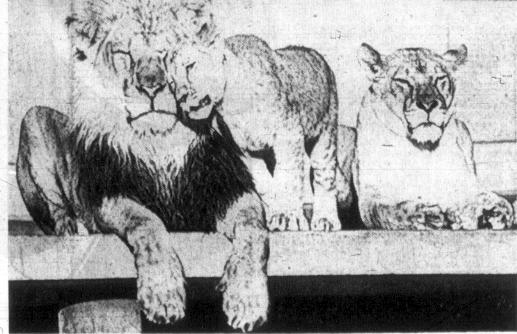

An air race extravaganza from London, England, to Victoria is expected to be a highlight of next year's B.C. centennial celebrations.

News that the race was being planned was leaked in London Monday and apparently caught the government here by surprise. L. J. Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, would say only that details of the race have not been worked out.

"All you can say now is that it's one of the projects being considered," Wallace said.

The London informants said Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Bennett had planned a joint announcement soon on the project.

Contestants would fly the north Atlantic route to eastern Canada, then across country under a series of handicaps for cash prizes.

We compete to satisfy desires ... and bring phones within everyone's reach!

Since January 1, 1959, there has been no increase in the rate structure for your local phone service. During the same period, many long distance rates have been reduced.

In the face of rising costs, how is this possible? Partly through finding more efficient ways of providing service. And partly through increasing other sources of revenue. B.C. TEL does this by competing directly with other suppliers in sale of services such as data transmission. leased circuits, electronic secretaries, recording devices, private radiotelephone systems and a host of other specialized services.

Indirectly, we compete with all kinds of goods and services for your "discretionary dollar" - the money you spend on things you want rather than the things you need - by selling colored phones, long distance service, extension phones, and so on.

What does this mean to you? Well, simply, it means a lower monthly telephone bill than would be possible otherwise Revenues obtained through direct and indirect competition have helped meet rising costs and there's been no increase in the exchange service rate structure for 11 years. And the more we compete - the longer that period is likely to be stretched.

Basic phone service is an essential today. It should be - and it is available at the most reasonable cost possible...throughout British Columbia.

Abduction, Robbery Mark Brazil's Underground War

RIO DE JANEIRO (NYT) An underground war with out quarter is being fought between Brazil's military government and small cells of radical terrorists in the largest cities.

Over the last two years the underground struggle, which came to public attention most recently in the kidnapping of the West German Ambassa-dor to Brazil, has included bank robberies, three abducof diplomats, raids, arrests and running gun-battles in the street of Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo and Belo Horizonte:

The urban guerrillas, in the picture that has emerged from Brazilian intelligence reports and occasional leaks from underground sources, live in cells of two to five people, constantly on the between apartments and houses.

As far as their stated aims have become public, they want to overthrow the mili-tary government and establish a socialist state in Latin

Outside the three major cities, which form a triangle that efcloses most of the country's industrial wealth, the struggle has rarely been noticed by most of the nearly 90 million Brazilians.

Nonetheless, according to the government, 13 agents of army, navy, air force and regular and political police have been killed and 62 have wounded. An estimate made public recently put the yield to terrorist groups from bank robberies at more than $2 million in cruzeiors.

It is a rough and sometimes bloody struggle. The terrorists, mainly students and former military officers noncommissioned officers, with a sprinkling of professional Communist revolutionaries, shoot when stopped or raided.

The violence is not all on one side. Prisoners who were not terrorists have reported after their release that tor-ture is often used in police and army interrogation, Ambassador Ehrenfried von Hol-lenbers kidnappers asserted that nine of their comrades had died in jail. A Brazilian officer would not concede that torture was used on suspected terrorists, but he said: "We have to get information fast or the whole cell will be gone. Unfortunately, our policemen are not very sophisticated."

The government has denied that torture is used in jails. Before the U.S. Ambas-sador, C. Burke Elbrick, was kidnapped last September, the estimated that there 400 activists divided g about 10 shadowy groups. One current estimate

A Costly Insurance Proposal

LIKE THE FEDERAL GOVERNment's white paper on taxation, the new unemployment insurance proposals unveiled last week by Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey are wide-ranging with profound social and economic implications. Proposed unemployment benefits of up to $100 a week would be financed in part by a new tax on employed persons. When national or local unemployment rates exceed four per cent a statutory subsidy for unemployment would be invoked.

As some critics have already pointed out the $100-a-week figure is more than the present average wage in eight provinces. The current maximum is $53 a week. But in a departure from the old unemployment scheme, new benefits would be taxable and contributions. deductible in keeping with Mr. Benson's tax philosophy.

The new plan would bring in 1.2 million workers — all but four per cent of the labor force - under unemployment insurance. This would be accomplished by raising the current $7,800 salary ceiling for unemployment insurance eligibility; thus teachers, hospital workers, executives and some civil servants would be included. Sickness benefits for up to 15 weeks and maternity benefits for six weeks before and after birth would fill gaps in the present social security system.

Some of the proposals need clarification and perhaps re-writing before legislation follows, probably in 1971. Many of the new workers who would be brought into the scheme — such as teachers and civil could run out of willing geese.

servants - already have job security. And provisions for sickness and pregnancy benefits invade the fields of other government departments, such as the Department of Health and Welfare. For many workers the plan would be merely a new form of tax without much likelihood of ever getting benefits.

But it is the employer who appears to be short-changed under the new proposals. Employees and employers would pay matching amounts under a new unemployment act only if the company's layoff pattern had been below average. However, if the employer's lay-off pattern was high - perhaps due to factors out of his control - he could pay up to double the employees' share.

White paper proposals are not necessarily final legislation. The unemployment proposals will be followed in the fall by other papers relating to pensions, family allowances and welfare. While some changes should be made in the new unemployment proposals, the total package of social security reforms will have to be publicly aired and debated before durable legislation is hammered out in 1971.

There are many welfare projects which are desirable from a social point of view, but they require money to finance them. Brought on too quickly by policy makers eager to implement ideal programs they. could result in serious financial problems. The goose that laid the golden eggs is still a valid fable. Human nature being what it is, we

Such an irresponsible statement impugns the entire Social proof. Mr. de Wolf's cat-and-mouse game is unworthy of this province's democratic system. Also, as the report notes, the federal interest in university research creates distortions; notably an over-emphasis on science, engineering or medicine at the expense of the humanities and social

Other considerations, however, have been deemed much more important in Ottawa. It is difficult at this time to imagine a radical change in the federal attitude because some of the older arguments have gained in force and also because proliferating federal programs create their own arguments for "intervention" on a wide front.

During the 1960s the case against a federal role (and for a re-allocation of tax fields) was pressed most consistently by the Quebec government which based itself on the report of the provincial Tremblay commission. There was in fact a very large transfer of tax points to the provinces. But Ottawa became increasingly apprehensive about this trend and ever more insistent that limits must be responsibilities, as well as to pay its bills. "In particular, they should retain for the federal government a sufficient part of the income tax field in all provinces - both personal and corporate to enable it to use variations in the weight and form of that tax for economic purposes and to achieve a reasonable degree of equity in the incidence of taxation across Canada."

While the limit of concession may not have been precisely defined, the federal government left little doubt that, in its view, the existing division came very close to it. Has this estimate changed? One reason for doubting it is the obvious fact that Ottawa, even with its present control of income taxation, has not been able to achieve a satisfactory control of the economy with the two traditional

Russia's System Works Despite the Ideology

ONE who has completed a lengthy trip through four republics and three autonomous subrepublics of the Soviet Union feels entitled to reword George

Bernard Shaw: "I have seen the future and it works - the hardest possible evolved over 53 arduous years during which the revolution has been institutionalized into frozen custard, has made the U.S.S.R. into one of the world's two superpowers - although it is arguable Russia might have gotten there anyway because its people possess enormous qualities.

But the formula is expensive, inefficient, top-heavy with bureaucracy and able to function because of the talent. durability and patience of a large population occupying a rich land. It accepts myths, unpersons, nonevents, Parkinson's law and the Peter principle.

It seems to me the Russians have risen to eminence despite rather than because of ideology. The substitution of a Bolshevik hagiography for the old-time religion isn't the answer. The answer is simply selection of priorities for a nation which doesn't work as hard as it might with more appeal to human incentives but which has its objectives shrewdly imposed.

This method wouldn't succeed in the United States and, in a generation, might not succeed in Russia, But it does function there now and probably has more chance in underdeveloped areas of the the world than the wasteful luxury of capitalism.

The more bourgeois the U.S.S.R. - and it is now lumbering in that direction - the more its increasingly vague ideology is likely to converge with our own increasingly vague ideology. But we are nowhere near that moment yet.

For Backward Countries

Moreover, Moscow probably has justified confidence that its inherently inefficient but directed society is better suited to backward countries than ours. Communism, in its abstract and platonic aspirations, is designed for angels, not men. But Soviet socialism adjusts comparatively well to underdeveloped lands that have not yet reached the stage Russia itself is bound to reach where competition and freedom of choice provide needed motivation.

The U.S.S.R. operates today on the basis of twinned economies, one linked to computers and producing space miracles and the other linked to the old-fashioned abacus and bumbling along. It is impossible to ascertain the proportionate fraction of financial or human investment in either compartment. Perhaps 5 per cent of technological genius and quadruple the capital investment go into superpower modernity while the great bulk staggers behind.

The cosmonauts are tied to the computer aspect while housing, agriculture and ground transportation are bound by umbilical cord to the abacus. Soviet sicentists, the equal of any nation's, are kept from infecting the mass population or being infected by the latter's ineptness through isolation in intellectual communities like Dubno and Akademgorodok.

But, unfair as this application of priorities is, it works. It also manages to avoid some problems of the West symbolized by a feeling of rejection among youth. Artificial separation and the imposition of disciplines and priorities have not produced an unhealthy

Nevertheless, absence of human incentive and dependence upon total bureaucracy encourages a mass resembling sheep in sheep's clothing and pushed around by arrogant functionaries. If the system works, it works the difficult way, and only because the majority of the nation is hardy, forbearing and also gifted.

Each time I visit the U.S.S.R. I am depressed by the stifling bureaucratic web which perhaps only the Russians could surmount. Laziness and incompe tence are fostered. Things are so slowed up that one feels as if he is moving underwater

Reviewing Gaps

The iconography of Lenin and the ideology of proletarianism are probably no longer convincing to the new Soviet generation. Nevertheless, Moscow may ell be right in believing many other countries will have to experience a similar social development - at least, before they are ready for the maturity true freedom requires. Moreover, if Russia has its economic gap between computer and abacus, we have our own generation gap.

I personally suspect that neither the abstract called Communism nor the abstract called capitalism really exists any more and competition for world influence both transcends and ignores outdated political theology. Certainly there is slackening messianic zeal in the middle-aged Soviet dream but one must acknowledge a certain vigor in the sluggish haven of Marxist malformation even if a Jeffersonian Democrat finds it unbearable.

China's Economic Miracle Is Being Hidden From

(A professor of economics at Stanford University. Gurley wrote this article for The Centre, a magazine put out by the Centre for the Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara, Calif.)

The strong propensity to treat China as the enemy has led to some grossly distorted accounts of China's economic progress.

The picture that is presented by Western studies as a whole is one in which China, while making some progress for a time in certain areas, is just barely holding on to economic life. It is a picture of a China always close to famine, making little headway while the rest of the world moves ahead, being involved in irrational economic policies, and offering little reason for hope that the lives of her people will be improved.

Our China experts, furthermore, know what is wrong and that, in a word, is communism. They seldom fail to pass judgment on some aspect or other of Chinese economic development, and this judgment is almost invariably capitalist-oriented.

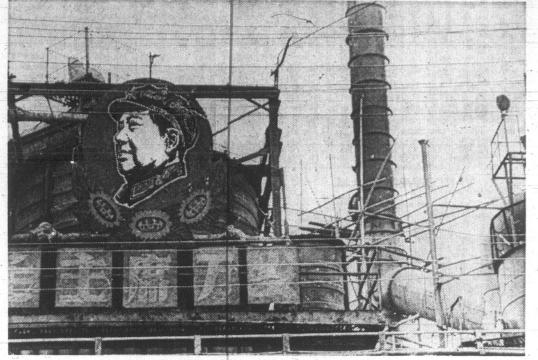

Thus national planning and government-controlled prices cannot be good because they do not meet the criteria of consumer sovereignty and competitive markets; communes violate individualism and private property; ideological campaigns upset order and harmony; the de-emphasis on material incentives violates human nature and so reduces individual initiative and economic growth; the breakdown of specialization lowers workers' productivity. This sort of thing pervades much of the economic literature on China.

Given all this — the narrow specialized studies that are sometimes useful but not often enlightening, the distortions by omission or commission, the capitalist-oriented approaches and assessments, not to mention those evaluations of Communist China that are inspired by a strong allegiance to Chiang Kai-shek — given all this, it is little wonder that a fair picture of China's economic progress seldom gets presented

The truth is that China over the past two decades has de very remarkable economic advances (though not steadily) on almost all fronts.

The basic, over-riding economic fact about China is that for 20 years she has fed, clothed, and housed everyone, has kept them healthy, and has educated most.
Millions have not starved; sidewalks and streets have not been covered with multitudes of sleeping, begging, hungry, and illiterate human beings; millions are not disease-ridden. To find such deplorable conditions, one does not look to China these days but, rather, to India,

Fertilizer factory ablazoned with ever-present Mao

Pakistan, and almost anywhere else in the derdeveloped world.

These facts are so basic, so fundamentally impoant, that they completely dominate China's economic plure, even if one grants all of the erratic and irrational posies alleged by her numerous critics.

The Chinese — all of them — now have what in effect an insurance policy against pestilence, famine and

In this respect, China has outperformed ery underdeveloped country in the world; and, even ith respect to the richest one, it would not be far-fetche to claim that there has been less malnutrition du to maldistribution of food in China over the past 20 yars than there has been in the United States.

If this comes close to the truth, the reason lies n in

China's grain output far surpassing her population growth for it has not — but, rather, in the development of institutions to distribute food evenly among the popula-

It is also true, however, that China has just had six consecutive bumper grain crops (wheat and rice) that have enabled her to reduce wheat imports and greatly increase rice exports. On top of this, there have been large gains in the supplies of eggs, vegetables, fruits, poultry, fish, and meat. In fact, China today exports more food than she imports.

From the industrial, agricultural and other gains, I would estimate that China's real gross national product has risen on the average by at least six per cent per year since 1949, or by at least four per cent on a per capita or other synthetics, we are talking about a cannabis preparation that is apparently not yet used outside of research setting."

This may not seem high, but it is a little better than the Soviet Union did over a comparable period (1928-40), much better than England's record during her century of industrialization (1740-1850), when her income per capita grew at one half of one per cent per year, perhaps a bit better than Japan's performance from 1878 to 1936, certainly much surgain to Krange's contrainly much surgain to the contr certainly much superior to France's one per cent record from 1800 to 1870, far better than India's 1.3 per cent growth during 1950 to 1967; more important, it is much superior to the post-war record or almost all under-developed countries in the world.

This is a picture of an economy richly endowed in natural resources, but whose people are still very poor, making substantial gains in industrialization, moving ahead more slowly in agriculture, raising education and health levels dramatically, turning out increasing numbers of contribution and project property of the state of bers of scientists and engineers, expanding the volume of foreign trade and the variety of products traded, and making startling progress in the development of nuclear

This is a truer picture, I believe, than the bleak one drawn by some of our China experts.

The failure of many economic experts on China to tell the story of her economic development accurately and fully is bad enough. Even worse has been the general failure to deal with China on her own terms, within the framework of her own goals and methods for attaining those goals, or even to recognize the possible validity of Communist China is certainly not a paradise, but it is now engaged in perhaps the most interesting economic and social experiment ever attempted, in which and social experiment ever attempted, in which tremendous efforts are being made to achieve an egalitarian development, an industrial development without dehumanization, one that involves everyone and affects everyone.

All these efforts seem not to have affected Western economists, who have proceeded with their income accounts and slide rules, and their free-enterprise values, to measure and judge.

One of the most revealing developments in the China field is the growing belief among the economic experts that further research is hardly worthwhile in view of the small amount of economic statistics that have come out of China since 1958.

Apparently, it does not matter that 775 million people are involved in a gigantic endeavor to change their environment, their economic and social institutions, their standard of living, and themselves; that never before have such potentially important economic and social experiments been carried out; that voluminous discussions of these endeavors by the Maoists are easily available.

No, if GNP data are not forthcoming, if numbers can't be added up and adjusted, then the economy must be hardly worth bothering about.

What can be done? Probably not very much until a substantial number of younger economists become interested in China

It is a hopeful sign that many young economists are now breaking away from the stultifying atmosphere of present-day "neo-classical" economics and are trying to refashion the discipline into political economy, as if once was, so as to take account of the actual world and not the world of highly abstract models, scholastic debates and artificial assumptions — all designed to justify the existing state of things and to accept without question the rather narrow, materialistic goals of capitalist society.

This reformulation by the young will have to take place first, but once this task is well along, China is bound to be attractive to many of these "new" economists. Only then will we begin to get a substantial amount of research on China that makes sense.

The research that would make sense is any that takes Maoism seriously as a model of economic development, in terms both of its objectives and of the means employed to attain those objectives

Nixon Finds a Friend in Court

After the president's expansion of the war into Cambodia had created intense controversy throughout the country, President Nixon announced that he would look into the Cambodian invasion at the end of June and report to the people.

"President Nixon knew that if he found the president's policy a disaster, he would be vulnerable to bitter criticism from the administration. He also knew that a favorable finding on the president's policy would probably out-rage the doves."

Smith was asked why Nixon, knowing all this, had agreed to get involved with the report. "When the president first asked him

KING SALMON, Alaska (AP) — Some Alaska salmon fishermen have reported earning up to $10,000 a head since the season started two weeks ago.

The figure was given by Wallace Noerenberg, Alaska fish and game commissioner. The Bristol Bay red salmon run climbed to the 18,000,000-20,000,000 range Saturday as catches continued high and canneries worked overtime. "An airlift of fish to Anchorage and Seward processors is providing a growing market for boats which had been unable to sell all the fish they are capable of catching," Noerenberg said. Bristol Bay canneries have imposed limits and closed fishing periods in order to maintain the catch at levels handle. About 2,000 boats and 890 set nets are operating in the bay this year.

"Our biologists estimate that fishermen have caught more than 10,000,000 red salmon," Noerenberg said.
"A b o u t 8,000,000-10,000,000 more have escaped up the stocks for subsequent runs."

VANCOUVER - They opened the NEW Empire Stadium here on Sunday afternoon and 12,000 people came out in the hot afternoon sun for the party. A great number of them were children, which was good, because this is what that "NEW" angle is all about. Empire Stadium now is a multipurpose facility for youth, which it definitely wasn't

This was the official introduction of the tartan-brand playing field and running manufactured by the 3-M Company of Canada, and it passed the test, handily.

Perhaps, for $900,000, which is what the operation cost, it should have passed; but the variety of events on view was the surprise.

There was everything from minor league soccer players to professional football players; track and field sprinters to a thoroughbred horse, square dancing to lawn bowling, and volleyball to field hockey.

It truly was an "open house," and the fans got a chance to walk on the running track, at least a small portion

But for the people who are going to use it, it is much more, particularly in the world of football, the B.C. Lions' exhibition season having gotten under way Monday

Both the Lions and Edmonton Eskimos had a prelimi-nary look at the field on Sunday (and Saturday) and the impressions were varied, but interesting.

and the running track.

"We had rain last week, and there was no problem,"

Stadium manager Mario Caravetta. "It rolled right off," he said. "And this is certainly going to help, because now we can have double and triple header football programs for the kids.' And the amateur and minor and the amateur and minor sports programs have the inside track, although the Lions still have the right to ask for the preferred dates. For this privilege of being No. 1 tenants, they will be asked to pay more. A new rental agreement is ready for sign

However the voungsters are going to get it for less. A vital concession is the new price which must represent a tremendous step forward.

Referee Head Realizes Dream

By DAN STINSON

What would be the ultimate dream of a soccer

To see the World Cup matches, of course the best soccer in the world.

That's exactly what a determined Victoria soccer enthusiast did.

But it wasn't easy.

Austrian-born Eric Remes came to Victoria in 1954. His great affection for soccer is such that he became immediately involved with the Remes was elected president of the Hourigan "Kick-ers" soccer club in the Victoria and District League that same year. He held the position until 1960, taking over the coaching reins of the Drake "Kickers," and in just two seasons guided the team to the league championship.

REFS' PRESIDENT.

Retiring as a coach, Eric accepted an offer from the league to referee in 1963, and has been active in that capacity since. He is now president of the Victoria Soccer Referees' Association.

Eric desperately wanted to go to the 1966 World Cup in England. Although he won't readily admit it, England is Remes' favorite team, and he probably would have given at least one of the toes of his best soccer foot to have seen the series.

He unabashedly admits however, that he could not afford to go.
So, for the past four years

he frugally "saved all my nickels" for the 1970 World Cup games. And this year his dream came true.

LONG WAIT

On May 29 he and a friend left on a flight to Mexico City to see the opening game of tht World Cup. It was the first time Remes had been to a soccer game of such calibre.

"The game was between Russia and Mexico. We left our hotel room at 7:30 in the morning to go to Aztec Stadium, and waited outside from 8:30 to 9:30 before the were open."

"It took us until 10:30 to get to our seats, and we had to sit there until noon when the game started.

watched the "Then we game for two hours, and it took us a full hour to leave the stadium when the game vas over."

Small wonder. Over 112,000 people were crowded into Aztec Stadium that day. Although the game itself was "very poor," Eric was extremely impressed by the colorful opening ceremonies, and of course, by the great number of people there.

"The best game was be-ween England and Brazil in Guadalajara. It was the best soccer I've ever seen. Very clean, and I must say that England was just a little etter than Brazil, even though they lost, 1-0."

"Brazil is a true champion. Their ball control, their sport manship between them-selves, and their unselfishness was tremendous. A true champion in every sense the word. The spirit of the sell-out crowds never ceased to amaze:

"You appreciate what it was like, cric explains. "I could feel the concrete structure of the stadium (Aztec) swaying with the crowd. It scares you!" He was impressed most, however, by the half-hour standing ovation the fans ave to both Brazil and Italy after the final game. Although the predominantly exican crowds were boister ous, Remes explains they started any serious trouble:

"Nowhere were there any riots. When Mexico defeated Belgium to qualify for the quarter-finals, the Mexican people had a big celebration. But nothing was ruined, nothing was broken. They just danced for happiness all night.

The trip, everything included, cost Eric $1,000. He was away from May 29 to June 24, "the most exciting days of my life!'

This was the biggest fleet of six-metres to race locally in many years. Three of them were from Victoria. They were John Todd's Llanoria, John Graeme's Juno and Alan Cavanagh's Starwagon. Cava-nagh stepped his mast a few bare hours before the departure across the strait.

In spite of strong wind and rough water Bruce Kenning savored a sweet victory Saturday when his Fireball headed the fleet of all Royal Victoria Yacht Club classes, except the cruising yachts, that competed in the third of four-race series from Cadboro Bay, out around Discovery Island and back again. Another Fireball sailor finished in third spot, having been beaten out by Sid Hall's Wild One.

acres of waterfront property at Witty's Lagoon for $125,000 was announced today by the Capital Regional District.

Comprising 2,800 feet of waterfront on Tower Point, the property was formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. Francisco de Urena.

It is across the Lagoon from Witty's Beach and brings regional park holdings in the area to 95 acres.

FIFTH PARCEL

It is the fifth parcel of land purchased in the area.

The regional district's first took place in 1967 when it expropriated 45 acres from the Witty brothers. Price paid for the property was $104,000.

There is no access to the newly-acquired property at this time.

But two lots required for such a route will be under control shortly, Roberts said.

"It has not yet been decided what type of park use the property win be put to," he said. "We may eventually create a pionic area there. create a picnic area there or we may decide to leave it in

The district hopes to acquire two small off-shore islands, both provincially owned, as well as additional property around the Lagoon.

SEW SIMPLE

Techniques for Knits

Every day I get many letters asking about sewing with knits. I shall devote some space to many of the questions you have asked. I would suggest you file this away for future reference because sooner or later you will succumb to them.

Pattern selection is import-ant. Since knits do have a lot of give, you will find that darts are not as important. Double knits, wool or polyester tailor beautifully suits, coats or dresses; single knits are perfect for softer, less-tailored designs. Select simple patterns for loose knits or bold prints. Avoid bias cuts or circular skirts.

Cutting and Marking: If centre fold line will not press out, refold fabric and avoid original fold line: Always work on a long, flat surface to avoid stretching fabric Use sharp pins and shears to avoid snagging. Mark carefully with tailor's chalk, or tracing paper (never use wax chalk, it will stain the fabric). For lightweight jersey, pin pattern on the wrong side to minimize curling.

Stitching: Seams must have give to prevent the thread from breaking. For polyester knits it is recommended you use the polyester thread, set your machine for about 12 stitches per inch, pulling your fabric slightly as you stitch. Only stay-stitch the shoulder, neckline and armhole, never stay-stitch the long seams. Seam finishes are not usually required since most knits do not ravel. To prevent seam a l lowances on lightweight single knits from rolling, about 14 inch from Pressing: Press lightly in lengthwise direction without stretching your fabric. Place strips of paper under the seam allowance of lightweight knits to prevent impressions on right side.

Inner construction: Knits require less inner construction than woven fabrics. Interfacings are very important in certain areas such as necklines, jacket or coat fronts, collars, cuffs, etc. Never choose an interfacing is too stiff because it would change the hang of the A fusible interfacing works beautifully for hems of thetic fibers that adhere two layers of fabric together, eliminating handwork, yet givin professional results.

One particular brand comes on transfer paper and is activated by steam, heat and pressure of the iron. The fibers actually melt into the fabric without restricting the flexibility of the fabric, even kmits. Fusibles can be used for hems, facings, collars, belts, and any area of your garment that requires a nice firm shaping. I especially love this type of application for the hems of slippery knits.

You apply the fusible to the hem allowance (apply to within ½ inch of the fold of your hem to avoid that ironed look at the hemline). Peel the paper off, turn up the fabric and press again. You have eliminated all the hand stitching that often shows on knits. This type of interfacing is not to be used with sheer fabrics, always test them first. Underlinings: Knits are usually not underlined because they keep their shape during wear and the underlin-ings would limit the give of the garment. If the knitted fabric is not high-quality fabric, even the underlining would not prevent stretching out. If you wish a separate lining in your knits, attach only at the neckline and armholes, letting it hang loose inside. If you wish to line a be sure to use washable lining fabric if the garment can be washed.

Finishing touches: Be sure to stabilize the area under the buttonholes, whether they are bound or machine-made, to avoid stretching. Be sure the zipper you choose is flexible. Check to be sure trims are compatible with the knits for washing or dry cleaning.

Hems: Allow any knitted garment to hang at least 24 hours before hemming. It's best not to hand-sew the edge of the fabric to your garment for the hem, instead fold back about %-inch and loosely slipstitch the hem to your garment. Never pull the stitches too tight, the results would be pulled and obvious line. Hem finishes such as tape, lace or whatever, are not necessary but can be used for a decorative touch, the hem itself should still be turned back and slip-stitched to the garment as explained above

If your pattern does not call for a facing, just use the pattern itself as a guide for cutting the interfacing. Use the neckline as your guide, making your interfacing about three inches deep. Pin and machine-stitch it to the wrong side of your fabric, then apply your lining and the neckline your dress will never stretch out of shape.

You will find it handy ti have the free "Fabric Con-version Chart" in your purse when shopping. The chart tells you what amounts of fabric would be needed in other widths according to a given width. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope with your request to Eunice in care of this

WASHINGTON - A small, smiling mother of 10 who used to be a witch doctor in Borneo chatted softly in Malay on the steps of the Smithsonian Institution.

She is Mundahoi, for 20 Christian and recently a delegate to the World Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists at Takoma Park Md., near here.

Mundahoi, who speaks not a word of English, spoke in her native Kadazan and Malay to the Rev. William E. Smith, a missionary to her part of Northern Borneo

Bridge Rebuilt

London

Two years, 50,000 pieces of specially selected wood, hours of research and patient attention to detail have gone into the London Bridge scene now on display at The Bay.

The model was commis-sioned by The Bay for their 300th anniversary. Don Ray has done the intricate carving while his wife, Honey, painted the houses and tiny figures.

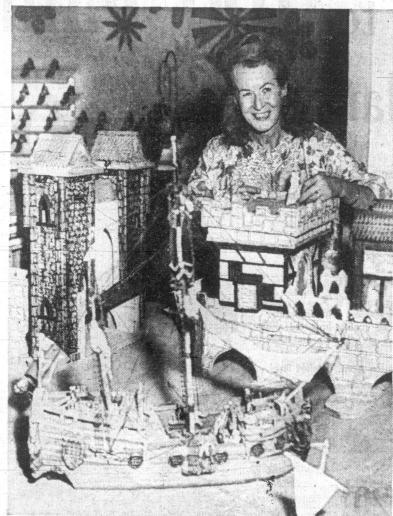

Describing his work Ray quipped, "Actually I'm a genius.'

The details are accurate down to the smallest detail. Nude figures are carved on the windows of the Nonsuch. These were believe to placate the rough waters of the North Atlantic.

The Tower of London has heads of executed people on spikes on the roof.

The display shows the re-turn of the ketch Nonsuch from her trip to Hudson Bay. The original trip was to find a Northwest Passage but the ketch became icebound. Laid up over the winter, the crew captured beavers and on their return presented some of the skins to King Charles II.

And so was granted The Charter by Charles II on May 2, 1670 ... "to the Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading into Hudson's Bay.'

British Commons Chooses Woman As Deputy Speaker

LONDON (CP) — Betty Harvie Anderson, first woman to act as deputy speaker of the House of Commons, will have no parliamentary protocol to guide her on the matter of dress when she first of dress when she first occupies the Speaker's carved throne at Westminster.

The Speaker, a non-partisan figure chosen by all members of Parliament to preside and keep order in the Commons, traditionally wears a fullbottomed wig like a judge and ceremonial court dress with knee-breeches.

His two deputies, both previously men, generally fa-vored a black morning tailcoat or short black jacket and striped pants.

Miss Harvie Anderson, a brisk, 55-year-old Scotswoman who is Conservative MP for Renfrewshire East, has to make her own rules, observing only the custom that whoever sits in the Speaker's chair never wears evening dress, even if he or she comes from an evening engagement to preside over a night session,

On her appointment Thursday to the post of deputy Speaker, along with Conserva-tive MP Sir Robert Grant-Ferris, Miss Anderson—who uses her maiden name in her political career— set a bright note by appearing in a vivid pink dress and hat.

REJECTS SOMBRE

She believes in dressing to suit her personality and has no intention of turning up in sombre outfits, though it has been suggested she will have to be careful with the colors red— traditionally Labor's trademark—and blue, with its Tory connotations.

The prospect of having to seep order in the often-unruly atmosphere of the Com-mons— now composed of 605 men and 25 women—does not unnerve this former ieutenant-colonel in the ATS, the women's army of the Second World War.

Art Books On Display At Library

Reproduction of work by cartographer Gerard Mercator and anatomist Andreas Vesalius, both founders of their sciences, highlight an exhibition of Belgian art books which opened Monday at the Greater Victoria public Library.

Vanhoutteghem officially opened the exhibit in the library's reference room at a small gathering attended by members of the Greater Victoria Board and Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo.

Vanhoutteghem told the group Bishop De Roo was the only person present who could read the books in any of the five languages in which they are published.

Belgian publishers print their books in French, Dutch, English German and in sometime Latin editions. Bishop De Roo was born in Winnipeg from Belgian parents.

The exhibition includes over 200 books on a wide range of subjects. Belgian artists whose works are represented range from old masters Rubens, Brughel and Van Dijck to contemporary sculptors, painters, glasiers, cartoonists, architects, musicians and writers. Many of the books treat international themes such as ancient Egyptian and Moslem Vanhoutteghem said the books will be given to libraries which are host to the exhibition across Canada. He said he has taken the books to nearly 20 cities. The exhibition closes in Victoria Wednesday, July 15.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

IT TAKES A THIEF, 7 p.m., Channel 6. Bette Davis appears as guest star in Touch of Magic, a mildly cutertaining heartwarmer about Bessie Grindle. Once she was queen of thieves. Now she's a charity case. Enter Mundy, who whisks her off to Majorca on the pretext that he needs her to help with a jewel

I DREAM OF JEANNIE. 7:30 p.m. Channel 5. "The Wedding." (Repeat) The episode in which Jeannie and her astronaut tie the knot is repeated here tonight. Naturally, it's not quite so simple to marry a genie, especially since you can't take a genie's picture and photographers are covering the big event. The only solution for Tony is to marry a dummy — we don't want to give anything away if you miss it—so just be prepared to throw rice at your JULIA. 8:30 p.m., Ch. 5 "Father of the Bride." (Repeat). The message tonight gets heavy handling, but it's worth hearing just the same. Corey finds himself pushed aside for a bigger chum when Earl J. Waggedorn boasts about his policeman father to a 10-year-old down the block, How Dr. Chegley gets into the act with the questionable bribe of a microscope both confuses the issue and settles it too.

FIRST TUESDAY. 9 p.m., Ch. 5. Tonight's edition of NBC's monthly magazine-of-the-air is full of interesting features on wide-ranging topics. For example, there's a filmed report on the Soviet buildup of Egypt's air defences made personally by NBC correspondent-producer Bob Rogers, from the vantage point of the Israeli side because he was unable to get permission from the Egyptians. There is a first-hand story on the methadone controversy in which Governor Tom McCall of Oregon and his son, Sam, appear. The nub of this report is the Governor's belief in the methadone treatment which is permitted by law in his McQUEEN. 9 p.m., Channels 2 and 6, Would-be author Tom Sanderson resorts to a vanity publisher to get his book sold. His wife, however, has other ideas about spending the family fortune. She calls in McQueen to expose the publisher and his business of playing on the vanities of second-rate writers.

BOLD ONES, 9:30 p.m., Channels 2 and 6, Trial of a Matioso. lawayers have this episode and Richard Conte appears in a guest starring role as Frank DeLacey, a mobster-turned-

THE GOVERNOR AND J.J. 9:30 p.m., Channel 7 (Repeat) Moderately entertaining entry. Because of daughter J.J., the Governor consents to being interviewed by a young reporter from the underground press. The kid can't make his tape recorder work and can't take decent notes, but his pathetic ways win over the staff. The idea is pleasant and harmless, with Dan Dailey earning most of the points.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

I have always sympathized deeply with any very lonely, unhappy and often nervously ill woman whose husband died, and then her children all married and moved away. The woman was alone, very lonely, with nothing to do, and nothing to interest her. As a result, she becomes depressed and sick.

I have seen many such women coming to a great clinic, expecting to find some terrible disease, but all that could be found was loneliness and a feeling of uselessness, futility, and "what's the use of carrying on?"

To those women, I often say that the best medicine for them would be to get a job of some kind. One of my daughters, when her fine husband died, immediately started to help people who were troubled in her neighborhood

For a while she worked as a "gray lady" in a hospital; she helped at the university by typing Ph.D. theses for graduate students. She helped the minister of her church and with her secretarial skill, she soon was getting out the church's weekly newsletter. Oftentimes she baby-sat with her grandchildren, freeing her daughter for things she needd to do. Also, my daughter made an effort to keep close to her old friends. In this way, she was able to ward off the depression and loneliness that comes to many a widow with nothing to do.

I just read that cancer of the colon (large bowel) and rectum, is the second commonest type of cancer, and it is killing thousands of people. What is sad is that cancer of the large bowel is so easy to diagnose with X-rays and a barium enema, and cancer of the rectum is easily diagnosed with the help of an electrically-lighted tube called a sigmoidoscope.

I am alive today, only because 10 years ago when I felt a new ype of pain in the left lower quadrant of my abdomen, I said, 'At my age, that new pain should mean a cancer." Two days later I was being X-rayed. Then the cancer was too small to be seen, but fortunately, I went again later for another examination and then it was easy to see. With an operation, I was quickly

One of my closest friends went for five years with a very slow-growing carcinoid (cancer-like) tumor in his rectum. For all those years he stood the discomfort and said nothing and consulted no physician. When he did, it was too late, a surgeon had to remove his rectum, and make for him a colostomy, which depressed him a great deal. Then he began to get severe pain in some of his bones, and as I feared, the tumor had scattered, and within a year he was gone. His death was so unnecessary, and he had so loved life. The important point to remember is that a new type of abdominal pain coming to a person past 40 is a danger signal that should not be ignored. A danger signal of cancer in the rectum is pain there, perhaps a feeling that th rectum does not empty, also perhaps the passage of red blood. Constipation that comes for the first time to a person past 40 can be a danger

Saanich Backs Joint Use Of Services

Saanich council agreed Monday night to a suggested study of joint or co-ordinated use of various local government services in Greater Victoria.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell made the suggestion recently in letters to Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. Services mentioned for the study include fire and police d e p a r tments, accounting, garbage disposal, assessment machinery, single purchasing commission and pooling of public works equipment.

Esquimalt council has rejected the idea while Victoria council has referred it to two committees. "GOOD SENSE"

Mayor Hugh Curtis said it may be that pooling of some services "makes good com-mon sense." Then again, it might not. But a study would show this.

Ald. Leslie Passmore said he wouldn't oppose the frotien "but I don't think the study will do much good." Ald. Edward Lum said he doesn't think it will come up with new information. Ald. William Campbell said he has no objections "but I have some reservations." USED BATTERIES

Bennett said De Wolf's latest statement is a "wild" one.

"He keeps on issuing these statements from time to time as he did in 1961 (claiming unsound B.C. finances) trying to make an impression,' Bennett said. "He's like all small boys result of labor-management strife in the first three months of the current fiscal At the same time, revenues are still running ahead of budget predictions and Bennett expects the province to remain in the black in the current fiscal year.

He called on all people associated with universities to be "out improving their image" and to encourage the public to give them greater financial support. (Bennett was replying to a claim by UBC president Walter Gage that the government is not providing enough funds for capital expansion to UBC.)

Slow Seasons Allow Two Cuttings

By HILDA BEASTALL

Our long, slow growth seasons offer two outtings of sage, thyme, mint and lemon balm for drying. The first cut for this winter herb supply can be taken during June just as these perennial plants begin to flower. If you there will no doubt be plenty of stems suitable for our purpose.

First, cut off and discard the flowering parts for it is leaves we want for drying. Choose a warm, sunny day. This is the weather to bring the aromatic oils up into the leaves; also the drier the atmosphere, the finer flavor there will be in the dried missed the chance then but have time now

The easiest way to cut herbs for drving is in six or eight-inch stems of leaves Hilda (according to kind) and about 10 stems to a bunch if you plan to hang them for drying.

Keep the different kinds separate when cutting and during the drying period. Some take longer than others.

For a new flavor in many families, young shoots of rosemary can be snipped off for drying. While it is an evergreen shrub here on the coast, winter rosemary leaves lack their summer fragrance and flavor.

A small jar of summer-dried rosemary leaves will raise ordinary winter hamburger to new gastronomical heights savory and sweet marjoram around the end of May, you'll find stems of these can be cut now too. But be careful not to strip the plants. Leave several shoots or you'll find new growths slow in coming.

Neither sweet basil nor bush basil is likely to be ready cutting yet, since these East Indian plants wait until really warm weather to grow. All too often I find myself using each new tip as it comes, for its flavor adds a delightful spiciness to salads.

The same with green dill. Young leaves are so good with lettuce, hard-boiled eggs and salmon that I seldom have a fullsized plant.

But this is what herbs are all about-experimenting, avoring, enjoying, not just something more to grow, admire

The method of drying herbs can be adjusted to suit. Small bunches of leafy stems are hung from rafters in a warm, airy shed to dry in a week or so. Sage, mint and rosemary take a few days longer.

Lacking a shed, herbs may be spread in a single layer on clean paper in a warm, airy room, out of sunshine, where they will need turning at least once daily.

The leaves should be crisp dry before stripping from the stems. Pieces are stored in small glass jars with screw caps, and labelled. Combling into powder is done with thumb and finger when using.

For best flavor, keep the jars in a dark cupboard

Virtually all experts throughout the world agree that the Italian systems of bidding, as employed by the Italian World Championship team, are superior to all other systems of bidding The Italian players, however, are human, just as you and I. And, as such, they are apt to slip on occasion.

In the deal presented today, which arose in the World Championships of 1967, Pietro Forquet, one of the worlds greatest players, slipped. But, in his defense, it should be bointed out that it was slip of the tongue, and not a systemic slip. The hand was played against the French

The deal arose during the first half of the match. When the second half started, it was noted that Forquet and his partner, Benito Garozzo, were not playing; and in their places were Massimo D'Alelio and Camillo Pabis Ticci.

When I located Forquet and Garozzo in the main ballroom of the hotel at which the tournament was taking place, they were watching the second half of the match on closed circuit television. I inquired as to why they were not playing. Forquet replied "We have benched simply: ourselves. Any time we get a slam on our own power, and the opponents cash two aces, it's time to take a rest.'

Little Firm Smites Big

DUNCAN - A Victoria firm's bid on a school painting contract was more than twice that of a Duncan firm when tenders were opened Monday by the Cowichan school board. Art Webb Painting and Decorating of Duncan won the contract on a low bid of $4,030 to paint portions of several district schools, while Acme Commercial Painting Ltd. of Victoria quoted $8,930. "What happened?" asked trustee Ernie Goddard. "Is one for one coat and the other for two coats of paint?"

Maintenance superintendent George Routley said one bid was lower than the other because "Webb himself is a working contractor and the other is a larger firm where there is probably much more overhead involved." Burak Construction of Duncan was awarded a $23,169

RC Mass Disrupted

CANTERBURY, England (CP) - Protestant militants disrupted a Roman Catholic service today at Canterbury Cathedral, shrine of the Church of

Cathedral officials said 12,000 Catholics turned out for a pontifical mass in the grounds of the Anglican church at the invitation of the dean. who called it "a friendly ecumenical gesture."

The Protestant militants, led by Rev. Ian Paisley of Northern Ireland's Free Presbyterian Church, recently elected to the British Parliament first demonstrated outside with chants of "No popery: No popery!" Then some moved to the altar during the service shouting, "Betrayal!" Police said one of them threw a silver chalice into the air as police grabbed him.

A security force escorted various Protestant demonstrators from the scene, but there were none

The mass was one of the three ecumenical services held at Canterbury to mark the murder of Archbishop Thomas Becket in 1170.

Paisley waved a banner carrying the words, "Jesus saves, Rome enslaves," and shouted "don't let your children go to hell," as parties of schoolchildren filed past in the care of nuns

Despite the heat, women in stiff straw hats and men in tight collars and suits sang along in full voice with Paisley.

External Affairs Minister Patrick Hillery, who also is Ireland's deputy premier, said he made his unannounced visit to the riot-torn Falls Road area of Belfast to "relax tension" among the Roman Catholics there.

A source close to the North ern Ireland government said the Irish Republic government is "obviously trying to get United Nations intervention by making this into an international incident."

But the British foreing office said Hillery as an Irishman "is perfectly free to travel to any part of Ireland.'

Hillery's manoeuver was expected to enrage Northern Ireland's dominant Protestants. They were expected to regard it as a symbolic assertion of the republic's claim to the six northern counties, which were split off from the 26 Catholic-dominated counties to the south 50 years ago.

Rev. Ian Paisley, the mili-tant Protestant evangelist, called the visit "an unwarranted interference in the internal affairs" of Northern Ireland, which is part of the United Kingdom.

Hillery said he would approach the British government on behalf of the Falls Road Catholics, who complained that British soldiers looted and wrecked their homes while they searched for arms after fighting last weekend.

Political observers felt the main reason for the trip was to counter criticism in the republic that Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch was playing too passive a role in the crisis between Northern Ireland's Catholics and Protestants. Negotiations were to re-sume this afternoon between the paper and the ITU.

The disclosure was made at a news conference Monday night by Israeli Chief of Staff Hayim Bar-Lev, who indi-cated that Soviet crews may have fired SAM-3 missiles at Israeli planes.

He said he believes Soviet personnel may have died during Israeli bombing raids on Egyptian SAM-2 batteries ranged behind the Suez canal.

Lt.-Gen. Bar-Lev stressed Israel's determination to aintain its stand along the Suez canal front.

He said Israeli jets have not attacked any SAM-3 batteries which are farther away from the canal front on the far side of a missile network set up midway betweeen the canal and Cairo. But he said Israeli pilots

London-Victoria Air Race Eyed for B.C. Centenary

An air race extravaganza from London, England, to Victoria is expected to be a highlight of next year's B.C. centennial celebrations.

News that the race was being planned was leaked in London Monday and apparently caught the government here by surprise. L. J. Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, would say only that details of the race have not been worked out.

"All you can say now is that it's one of the projects being considered," Wallace said.

The London informants said Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Bennett had planned a joint announcement soon on the project.

Contestants would fly the north Atlantic route to eastern Canada, then across country under a series of handicaps for cash prizes.

The U.S. aim, apparently, is to include the Middle East in a general settlement of out-standing differences between the United States and the

If Moscow refuses to step back and ease the threat of a confrontation, officials have not ruled out an American military presence in the Middle East coupled with more aid to Israel.

It is considered unlikely that the U.S. would send advisers or combat troops to the Middle East, but one suggestion heard is that the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean be strengthened and that it fly air cover over Israel if that became neces-

"I would not be prepared to hold any talks with Dublin on any terms of any kind," Chichester-Clark said.

Hillery's secret mission across the border came as he put pressure on the Ulster government to ban parades by the Protestant Orangemen in shows of strength.

TENSION INCREASED

The demonstrations have increased the tension in Northern Ireland and brought retaliation from Roman Catholics that has led to rioting.

Hillery said he had appealed to all ambassadors in the Irish Republic to use thier influence with the Brit-ish to ban the "provocative" Orange parades scheduled for Chichester-Clark, in a BBC interview not shown in Northern Ireland for fear of inflaming the situation, said he would be "greatly re-lieved" if the Orange Orange marches were called off.

We compete to satisfy desires ... and bring phones within everyone's reach!

Since January 1, 1959, there has been no increase in the rate structure for your local phone service. During the same period, many long distance rates have been reduced.

In the face of rising costs, how is this possible? Partly through finding more efficient ways of providing service. And partly through increasing other sources of revenue.

B.C. TEL does this by competing directly with other suppliers in sale of services such as data transmiss leased circuits, electronic secretaries, recording devices, private radiotelephone systems and a host of other specialized services

Indirectly, we compete with all kinds of goods and services for your "discretionary dollar" - the money you spend on things you want rather than the things you need - by selling colored phones, long distance service, extension phones, and so on.

What does this mean to you? Well, simply, it means a lower monthly telephone bill than would be possible otherwise. Revenues obtained through direct and indirect competition have helped meet rising costs and there's been no increase in the exchange service rate structure for 11 years. And the more we compete - the longer that period is likely to be stretched.

Basic phone service is an essential today. It should be - and it is available at the most reasonable cost possible...throughout British Columbia.

A security force escorted various Protestant demonstrators from the scene, but there were none

The mass was one of the three ecumenical services held at Canterbury to mark the murder of Archbishop Thomas Becket in 1170.

Paisley waved a banner carrying the words, "Jesus saves, Rome enslaves," and shouted "don't let your children go to hell," as parties of schoolchildren filed past in the care of nuns.

Despite the heat, women in stiff straw hats and men in tight collars and suits sang along in full voice with Paisley.

'Clandestine' Visit Rapped By N. Ireland

Minister James Chichester-Clark of Northern Ireland sharply denounced today the clandestine visit to his tense province Monday by the Irish Republic's external affairs

"I am astounded," said Chichester-Clark, "that the foreign minister of any state should show such a lack of courtesy as to visit Northern Ireland without reference to me or to the Northern Ireland government-the more so in the present very serious

External Affairs Minister Patrick Hillery, who also Ireland's deputy premier, said he made his unannounced visit to the riot-torn Falls Road area of Belfast to "relax tension" among the Roman Catholics there.

A source close to the North-ern Ireland government said the Irish Republic government is "obviously trying to get United Nations intervention by making this into an international incident."

CALLS IT 'TRESPASS'

"This is a trespass by a foreigner into British territory and is against all politiconvenion," the source added.

But, the British foreign office said Hillery as an Irishman "is perfectly free to travel to any part of Ireland."

expected to enrage Northern Ireland's dominant Protes tants. They were expected to regard it as a symbolic assertion of the republic's claim to the six northern counties, which were split off from the 26 Catholic-dominated counties to the south 50 years ago.

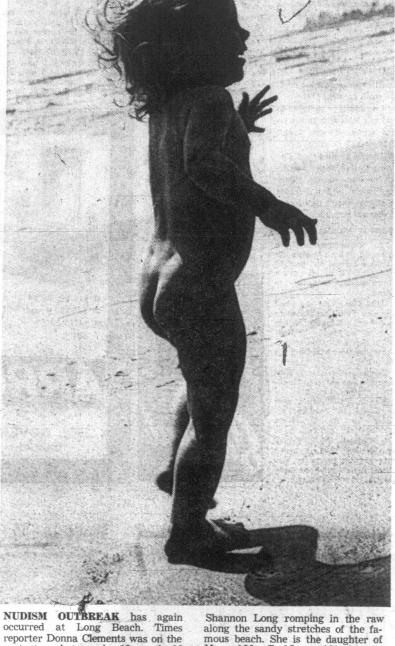

Rev. Ian Paisley, the militant Protestant evangelist, called the visit "an un-warranted interference in the internal affairs" of Northern Ireland, which is part of the United Kingdom.

Hillery said he would approach the British govern-ment on behalf of the Falls Road Catholics, who complained that British soldiers wrecked their homes while they searched for arms after fighting last weekend.

LYNCH PASSIVE

Political observers felt the main reason for the trip was to counter criticism in the republic that Irish rame. Minister Jack Lynch was playing too passive a role in the crisis between Northern Ireland's Catholics and Protestants. Lynch's govern-ment has pledged to reunify Ireland only through peaceful means.

Hillery said in a television interview after he returned to Dublin that the Northern Ireland government could not be maintained "with the force of arms and force of British money." He predicted strife Continued on Page 2 during Israeli bombing raids on Egyptian SAM-2 batteries ranged behind the Suez canal. Lt.-Gen. Bar-Lev stressed Is rael's determination to maintain its stand along the Suez canal front.

He said Israeli jets have not attacked any SAM-3 bat-teries which are farther away from the canal front on the far side of a missile network set up midway betweeen the canal and Cairo.

But he said Israeli pilots reported at least two rockets, which appeared to be of the more sophisticated SAM-3 type, were fired at them.

SEE CLASH AHEAD

Observers in Tel Aviv noted Israel's declared determination to maintain its air superiority along the canal, coupled with the new Soviet involvement in the SAM-2 and SAM-3 batteries, could lead to a collision between Israel and Soviet forces, especially if Israeli planes were hit by SAM-3 batteries manned entirely by Soviet personnel.

The observers said it was believed that Soviet pilots might be ordered to defend the Sam-3 sites.

Israel already has charged that Soviet pilots are flying operational missions over

Egypt.

The Tel Aviv report on sophisticated SAM-3 missiles being fired at Israeli planes was sees in Washington as another dangerous spiral in the Middle East situation.
Some U.S. officials regard the introduction of pilots and missiles into Egypt direct challenge to the United States and part of Russia's global policy of expanding its influence wherever possible.

London-Victoria Air Race Eyed for B.C. Centenary

An air race extravaganza from London, England, to Victoria is expected to be a highlight of next year's B.C. centennial celebrations.

News that the race was being planned was leaked in London Monday and apparently caught the government here by surprise. L. J. Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, would say only that details of the race have not been worked out.

"All you can say now is that it's one of the projects being considered," Wallace said.

The London informants said Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Bennett had planned a joint announcement soon on the project.

Contestants would fly the north Atlantic route to eastern Canada, then across country under a series of handicaps for cash prizes.
